RESEARCH

Progressive municipalities and health inequalities - A Swiss paradox?
People of low social status in economically progressive locations report significantly lower subjective health and life satisfaction than people of the same status in conservative locations.

Read more

Employment and well-being after plant closures in Switzerland
The age of the workers and the socio-economic conditions of the company play an important role in the return to employment, over and above individual skills and motivation.

Read more

The impact of career paths on health, happiness and productivity
This study contributes to the advancement of research on sustainable careers by applying the career sustainability framework to a seven-year longitudinal study of 789 career trajectories of Swiss workers.

Read more

Well-being and longevity for seniors
Practical workshops for seniors to implement concrete strategies and achieve their day-to-day goals.

Read more

PROJECTS

The empty office: an international study on teleworking
This project is looking at the effects of teleworking on conflicts between colleagues and family members, social support, social control and interruptions to work activities.

Read more

Modelling the impact of contraception on women's empowerment
The aim of analysing access to and use of contraceptives is to apply a human rights perspective in the African countries studied: Burkina Faso, Nigeria, Côte d'Ivoire, Uganda and Kenya.

Read more

Annual report 2023 - CIR-LIVES UNIL
A review of the activities and events in 2023 of the LIVES Interfaculty Centre at the University of Lausanne, plus formation on our research projects.

Read more

PUBLIC EVENTS

Assises des familles 04.06.2024 - Vieillir en lien: Familles, amis, voisins, vie associative et institutions - Registration open until 3 June 2024.

Read more

Continuing education
Skills enhancement and professional reintegration - Seminar for managers and specialists - 10, 11, 24 and 25 September 2024.

Read more

Find out about all LIVES Centre events and Doctoral Programme workshops (open to registration, subject to availability).

PORTRAIT

Michel Oris
Michel Oris, Honorary Professor at the University of Geneva, is set for a very active retirement. After 24 years at UNIGE, he is joining the Spanish Research Council in Madrid. 3 questions and a look back at his farewell lecture on 17 April 2024.

Read more

PUBLICATION HIGHLIGHTS

